Many stories of the cold weather were told about town to-day, for there was abundant opportunity. It was one of the coldest days of the winter, thermometers ranging from 24 to 32 degrees below zero. The spirit thermometer of Dr. O. H. Reed of Elm street, which generally gets about as low as any in town, registered 32 below at six o'clock.

The current number of "The Vermontor," published at White River Junction, contains a cut and sketch of the Aldrich Public Library of this city. The issue also has an interesting article on the relations of President-elect Taft to Vermont, from the pen of Charles Spencer Forbes of St. Albans, and an appreciative life sketch of the late Bishop Michael of the Catholic diocese of Burlington.

The show at the opera house seems to be catching on, and a large number of people witnessed the performance last evening. The pictures are good, but Mile. Carrino and her performing bears are the real drawing card. The way in which she puts the clumsy appearing animals through their amazing stunts, shows a whole lot of patience in training and no little courage in entering the cage with the animals day after day. They appear all this week except Wednesday night.

Few plays have been written with a Canadian setting, and the pronounced success of "The Wolf," Eugene Walter's story of life in the Canadian woods, should prove of great interest to all of Canada's sons and daughters, wherever they may be. With a French-Canadian woodsman as the hero, in love with the daughter of a sturdy Scotch settler, there is an appeal to both of these representative classes of Canadian citizenship, many of both of which are found seeking fortune in the States, particularly in New England. The scene in which Hilda discovers the difference between the "good love" of her honest French-Canadian admirer and the "bad love" of the engaging but unscrupulous American engineer, is described as very effective. The fight in the fading twilight between the rivals where the audience can discern only the two struggling figures without being able to distinguish between them is pronounced the most striking scene of its kind ever produced. "The Wolf" will be played at the opera house Wednesday, Jan. 20, and an elaborate scenic display is promised.

The Daylight Store

THIS WEATHER CALLS

Yes, Calls for Heavy Bedding and Heavy Winter Garments

Rather than carry these goods into another season or even carry them into next month, we will sacrifice the price and let them go now while we are closing up this season's business, as after February 1st we want everything to be new and while these same goods will have a sale then we are ready now to let them go at the following prices.

Bedding

This means Blankets and Quilts. About one-half case of ten-quarter Grey Blankets now at 49c per pair. (Not the cost to us.)

Nearly one case of ten-quarter Blankets of a heavier grade, that were made to sell for 75c, now at 59c per pair.

About 25 large sized Crocheted Bed Quilts that were $1.25, now at 98c each.

All of our Bed Comforters at a price allowance, such as a $1.25 Comforter at 98c, and all of our better ones at a less price than marked.

These goods with this weather would sell without any reduction. They ought to sell faster with our prices reduced.

Our Ladies' Suits and Coats are all in this sale, and it's a good time to buy them.

What Would Great-grandma Say?

Your great-grandma would have one surprise after another, if she visited one of our large stores to-day and saw the many things now ready-made which she had to toil over at home for hours and hours. The new comforts would surely interest her. To think that you can now get one ready-made that is far warmer and lighter than the best she ever made at home is really remarkable. But such is the case, and these comforts are shown right here in our own town. They are called the Maish Laminated Cotton Down Comforts, and can be seen in all sizes and patterns at Perry's.
